'SX-4-32-1'

Exhibit A: Origin and Breeding History of Corn Variety<X-4-32-1>

SX-4-32-1

<X-4-32-17 originated out of Dudley and Alexander's "Synthetic B." The breeding method for obtaining Synthetic B is described in J. W. Dudley and D. E. Alexander, Crop Science, 9:613-615, 1969. Original breeding stock was obtained from the University of Illinois in May, 1980.

The seeds of Synthetic B were planted in May of 1980 and self-pollinations were made on the most robust plants during the summer of 1980. Self-pollinated seed from these plants were bulked and selfed in the winter of 1980-81, winter of 1981-82, winter of 1982-83, and summer of 1983. Ears were kept separate from the summer 1983 planting, and an ear-to-row planting was made during the winter of 1983-84. The resulting plants were self-pollinated in the summer of 1984.

One generation was judged for uniformity and stability. Acceptable uniformity and stability were observed. There were no discernible variants. $\frac{1}{5}\times 4-32-1$

Exhibit B: Novelty Statement

SX-4-32-1 is a tetraploid Zea maize ssp. maize. Unlike diploid corn, X-4-32-1 has twice the normal number of chromosomes, that is, it has 40 somatic chromosomes. Normal Zea maize ssp. maize is diploid, and has 20 somatic chromosomes. Therefore, X-4-32-1 is unique on the basis of its number of somatic chromosomes, and differs from all diploid corn on this basis.

'SX-4-32-1' differs from Synthetic B, from which it was derived, on the basis of its uniformity and homozygosity. Synthetic B is a very heterogeneous population, as demonstrated by the fact that the Applicant has derived a number of novel varieties from Synthetic B.

The most similar varieties to $X-4-32-1 are other varieties derived from Synthetic B. These are $X-4-2, $X-4-4, $X-4-16-2, and $X-4-33-4-2, for which applications for plant variety protection have been filed. The varieties have been assigned the following application numbers:

Please amend Exhibit B to show that SX-4-32-1 does not differ from SX-4-2 on the basis of anther color.
